Final Report on the 2021 Expired Resolutions

About Resolutions

Alberta Municipalities (ABmunis) conducts an annual resolutions process that enables member municipalities to identify and prioritize common issues and solutions and give direction to Alberta Municipalities' Board of Directors to advocate to the federal and provincial governments on members' behalf.

This process includes a resolutions session at ABmunis' annual Convention where members vote on submitted resolutions. When a resolution is adopted by members, ABmunis takes action to develop and implement advocacy strategies for each resolution.

Given the scope, complexity, and volume of issues facing municipalities, ABmunis uses a prioritization framework to determine the degree of resources that are invested in advocacy for each resolution.

About this Report Card

Adopted resolutions are considered active for three years. This Report Card summarizes the status of all 2021 resolutions as of October 2024 when the three-year active period has expired. With the expiration of the 2021 resolutions, this is the final Report Card that ABmunis will publish on the 2021 resolutions.

Note: References to "AUMA" are in reference to ABmunis' former name, the Alberta Urban Municipalities Association, which was the association's name when the resolutions were adopted.

The first priority is to provide financial incentives to support municipalities in conducting environmental site assessments. FURTHER BE IT RESOLVED THAT the AUMA ask the Government of Alberta to create a red tape reduction task force making recommendations on removing barriers for local government and the private sector to discover, investigate, remediate, and redevelop brownfields. FURTHER BE IT RESOLVED THAT the AUMA advocate the Government of Alberta develop a policy to manage old reclamation certificates deemed null and void and re-define the Orphan Well Association mandate to support legacy sites. FURTHER BE IT RESOLVED THAT the AUMA call for a provincial brownfield tax incentive program that matches the province's education tax with municipal property tax to encourage eligible property owners to clean up brownfield properties.	ABmunis' Rating of the Government's Response Intent not met. ABmunis' Notes and Actions In February 23, 2022, the Minister of Environment and Parks communicated to ABmunis that funding is available through the Municipal Sustainability Initiative, the Canada Community Building Fund, and the ability of municipalities to incent brownfield development through deferring or exempting of municipal taxes. The Minister did not feel the Orphan Well Association was an appropriate program for legacy contaminated sites when a responsible party exists but acknowledged that Alberta Environment and Parks continues to review Alberta's contaminated sites to improve remediation and to create a liability management framework. This resolution builds on ABmunis' previous work and advocacy on brownfield redevelopment. Further background can be found on our Brownfield Redevelopment Hub. ABmunis will pursue implementation of its recommendations within the context of our red tape reduction, economic development, and assessment and taxation related initiatives. In 2024, ABmunis' Sustainability and Environment Committee updated their work plan for the 2024/25 year, to better prioritize building code adaptations that facilitate brownfield development. This revision aims to reduce red tape and advocate for streamlined processes in brownfield redevelopment, cutting down on lengthy approval requirements.

The province believes that governments need to look for ways to reduce red tape, incentivize economic activity and make strategic choices about where limited tax dollars should be spent." ABmunis' advocacy efforts have been successful in leading to the implementation of the Local Government Fiscal Framework (LGFF) wherein future funding amounts will be linked to changes in the Government of Alberta's revenue so that LGFF infrastructure funding will grow with Alberta's economy over the long term. In regard to provincial downloading, ABmunis released data in September 2023 that demonstrates that between 2017 and 2022, the Government of Alberta downloaded an estimated $384 million in operational costs onto municipalities by reducing grant funding or not indexing funding to inflation. It should be acknowledged that this figure does not account for all costs such as municipalities having to

Careful consideration of any new taxation tools to increase housing stock would be required before the government would enact any changes..." Similar to Resolution B3, the Government of Alberta has shown no support to-date to expand financial tools for municipalities. This resolution aligns with ABmunis' broader work focusing on the financial health of municipalities, future economic trends, and reviewing what financial tools will set Alberta's communities up for long-term viability and growth.

The Minister also communicated that the current process provides flexibility for how a municipality pays their police funding model invoice.

Due to the province's significant reduction in infrastructure funding for municipalities in recent years, the ABmunis Board has focused its advocacy efforts to seek an increase in the starting amount of LGFF Capital instead of seeking new funding programs. However, with the launch of the Local Growth and Sustainability Grant in fall 2024, ABmunis provided input on how this program could be best designed to meet the needs of municipalities over 10,000, which often serve as regional centres.

Updates on this program have been regularly communicated to ABmunis Infrastructure Committee. As this work aligns with other work being done on adaptation and resiliency, ABmunis will continue to monitor progress on this program and invite members to participate as opportunities arise.

The Alberta Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Provincial Advisory Committee made several recommendations on improving working conditions for first responders, including providing mental health supports, along with other actions to support staff recruitment and retention. Although these recommendations were accepted, it is unclear when and how the province will implement them. Additionally, predictable, ongoing funding for service providers would be preferable to one-time annual grants. Lastly, all Albertans continue to face barriers to accessing mental health supports and services, including lack of transportation, lack of local services providers, and lack of health insurance to cover mental health services. Accordingly, ABmunis highlighted this issue in meetings with the Minister and AHS EMS staff; our monitoring of the implementation of Alberta EMS Provincial Advisory Committee recommendations; our 2023 election strategy; and our analysis of the 2023 Budget.

ABmunis' subsequent "Think Alberta, Vote Local" election campaign highlighted the need for improved access to provincial supports and services. This campaign encouraged people to ask candidates "Who has the plan?" on three key municipal priorities: community building (infrastructure), community safety (including policing), and community health (including Emergency Medical Services, mental health services, and social services). While Alberta Supports and Children's Services offices remain open, access issues continue to be a concern for many municipalities, as evidenced by a 2023 resolution on Rural Access to Supports for Addictions, Homelessness, and Mental Health.
